DRAFT

11 Co. ("Careau") and Mohre Communications ("Mohre"), an affiliate of Careau, concerning the application of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended

("the Act"), and Commission regulations to what you describe as "the sale and use of

14 Internet Service Provider ("ISP") services for Internet-based political fundraising to make

15 contributions to Federal political committees." 1

You state that Careau, a California corporation, is a marketing company that develops programs for the Internet. It has two pending patent applications that it has licensed to Mohre, a Nevada corporation, to facilitate their joint proposed program for the making of Federal election contributions. As part of this program, Mohre will provide services as an Internet Service Provider and Portal ("ISP"). You state that individuals who access the Internet site operated by the requestors will be able to subscribe to the ISP services they offer. However as part of the service, subscribers will be required to make two monthly categories of payments: one for the cost of the ISP service and the other in the form of a contribution to either a Federal political committee or a charitable donation

You submitted an earlier version of your proposal on November 21, 2001 which became Advisory Opinion Request 2001-20. This request was later withdrawn by letter dated January 19, 2002.

- to a 501(c) organization. You affirm that an individual will not be able to subscribe or
- 2 maintain a subscription to the ISP services without making either a donation or a political
- 3 contribution as described below.
- 4 The various Federal political committees participating in the program ("the
- · 5 America Plan") will direct their supporters to the Mohre and Careau's registration
  - website in the hope that the supporter will make two choices: subscribe to the ISP and
  - 7 choose the option to make a contribution to Federal political committees (rather than a
- 8 donation to a charitable organization). You explain that "individuals who choose to
  - 9 subscribe to this full service ISP may do so over the Internet by credit card and may elect
- 10 to earmark a small portion of the monthly service fees as contributions to specific Federal
- election committees or 501(c)(3) organizations." In order to subscribe, the individual
- must complete a series of form questions. You state that these questions, and the answers
- to them, also serve to satisfy the Act and Commission's screening procedures. This is
- intended to ensure that those who participate in that part of the program are qualified to
- make contributions to Federal political committees.

According to the request, the price of the ISP services that Mohre offers will be $17.76 per month. Of this targeted price $15.76 will be paid to the Careau and Mohre for the ISP services provided. Subscribers will be allowed to contribute a total of up to $2.00

19 per month in various amounts to as many as five Federal political committees and/or &lt;sup>2</sup> A 501(c)(3) organization is, generally, a tax-exempt, non-profit corporation or other entity organized and operated exclusively for charitable, religious, or educational purposes not involved in influencing legislation or involved in influencing elections. See 26 U.S.C. 501(a) and (c)(3). You offer the Boys and Girl Club and United Way as an example of the 501(c)(3) organizations that may be included in the plan.

<sup>3</sup> You explain that your use of the term "credit card" is meant to encompass credit cards, debit cards, and any other commonly accepted form of electronic transfer of funds in commerce over the Internet.

- 1 501(c)(3) organizations.<sup>4</sup> The Federal political committees that would receive the
- 2 contributions will be determined by where the subscriber lives. When the subscriber
- 3 completes the transaction, the amount of the transaction that consists of the payment for
- 4 the ISP services would be transferred directly to Careau and Mohre. The portion that
- 5 represents the contribution to the Federal political committee would be directly sent into a
- 6 separate merchant account. Following the deduction of the usual and normal service
- 7 charges of the credit card issuers and other processing expenses, the Federal political
- 8 committee would receive the contribution.<sup>5</sup> You state that this ensures that the Federal
- 9 political committees receiving each contribution would pay all the applicable processing
- 10 fees and any associated merchant account charges.
- 11 Careau has been in discussions with several Federal political committees that have
- 12 expressed an interest in participating. These include the campaign committees for
- members of Congress of both the Democratic and Republican Parties, as well as the
- 14 Democratic National Committee and Republican National Committee.
- 15 Your request includes further information regarding how the funds would be
- 16 accounted for and transferred to various candidate committees, as well as the various
- 17 security procedures Careau and Mohre would take to prevent the making of prohibited

&lt;sup>4</sup> After subscribing to the program, the contributor may discontinue any or all of the contributions but to continue to receive the ISP services they must always make new contributions or donations of $2.00 per month.

&lt;sup>5</sup> You explain that Mohre and Careau have entered into preliminary third party agreements with vendors for other necessary services; e.g. merchant account services, credit card authorization and processing, billing name, address services, etc. These services will be obtained from various vendors at the usual and normal charge for similar services and the rate will include expenses plus a reasonable profit to the vendor(s).

- 1 contributions. You assert that these procedures are in accord with the relevant past

- 3 You ask whether the above proposal is permissible under the Act and
- 4 Commission regulations.

ACT AND COMMISSION REGULATIONS

- 6 Under 2 U.S.C. 441b(a), it is unlawful for "any corporation whatever" to make a
- 7 contribution or expenditure in connection with any election at which presidential and vice
- 8 presidential electors or a Senator or Representative in, or a Delegate or Resident
- 9 Commissioner to, Congress are to be voted for, or in connection with any primary
- election, or political convention or caucus, held to select candidates for any of these
- 11 Federal offices. It is likewise unlawful for any candidate, political committee, or other
- 12 person knowingly to accept or receive any contribution prohibited by this section, or any
- officer or any director of any corporation or any national bank or any officer of any labor
- organization to consent to any contribution or expenditure by the corporation, national
- bank, or labor organization, as the case may be, prohibited by this section. Id.
- For purposes of 2 U.S.C. 441b(a), the term "contribution or expenditure"
- 17 is defined to include:
- 18 any direct or indirect payment, distribution, loan, advance, deposit,
- or gift of money, or any services, or anything of value .... to any
- 20 candidate, campaign committee, or political party or organization
- in connection with any election to any of the offices referred to in
- 22 [section 441b(a)].

The Commission has considered a number of business arrangements between political committees and corporations to assist political committees in raising funds. In several past opinions the Commission has reviewed fundraising efforts by political committees using certain "affinity marketing arrangements." See Advisory Opinions 1992-40, 1988-12 and 1979-17. Although the opinions addressed different types of services, the proposals examined were very similar to "the America Plan" in their basic approach. A corporation (sometimes a bank) would offer to market its services to potential customers who were also identified as supporters of a particular political party or candidate. The party or other political committee would endorse the product or service offered by the corporation. In some of these proposals, the corporation would pay a fee to the political party in return for the endorsements. See advisory opinions cited above. Rather than viewing these as commercial transactions, the Commission regarded them as fundraising efforts by political committees. The Commission specifically concluded that the fact that a business corporation received something of value (an endorsement of its product or service) in exchange for payments that purported to be the proceeds of a commercial sale did not change the contribution nature of the transaction. The payments

&lt;sup>7</sup> In Advisory Opinion 1979-17 a national bank proposed to market its credit card services to members of the Republican National Committee. In return, among several options, it offered to pay either a one-time fee to the RNC or a portion of the membership fee paid by each subscriber to the credit card service. Similarly, in Advisory Opinion 1988-12, a county Democratic Party committee proposed to give access to its list of supporters so that a bank could market its credit card services. A portion of each membership fee would be remitted to the local party committee. In Advisory Opinion 1992-40, a company selling long distance telephone services proposed to sell, with the marketing support of political party committees, its services to party members or denors. Again a percentage of the sales generated would be paid to a political party committee as a commission.

- received by the political committees were regarded as contributions subject to the
- 2 prohibitions of 2 U.S.C. 441b.8
- 3 Your plan differs somewhat, from these opinions. You have described your
- 4 proposal as one in which the customers of Mohre would directly "earmark" contributions
- 5 to various political committees. A subscriber would always be required to contribute or
  - 6. donate the $2.00 per month portion of the fee and that amount (minus certain transaction
- 7 costs) is always forwarded to a Federal committee or a 501(c)(3) organization through the
- 8 use of a merchant account. Therefore, this amount would never become corporate
- 9 treasury funds of Careau and Mohr and these funds could not by themselves be deemed
- 10 corporate contributions to the Federal committees.
- 11 However, this difference is not material since the question of compensation for
- their Internet marketing service provided to political committees remains. You state that
- 13 the Careau and Mohre have contracted with vendors that will provide various processing
  - 14 services that make the America Plan possible. These vendors would receive
  - 15 compensation when their fees are deducted from the contributions transmitted to the
  - 16 political committees. However, you indicate that no fee will be paid to either Mohr or
  - 17 Careau for arranging these processing services and creating a website that facilitates

This is in contrast to those situations where a political committee pays a telemarketing firm a commercially reasonable fee in exchange for the firm's efforts to market services that offer an opportunity for a purchaser to contribute to the committee. See Advisory Opinions 1999-22, 1995-34, 1994-33, and 1990-14. For example, in Advisory Opinion 1994-33 a telecommunications company proposed to market prepaid phone cards using the endorsements of various authorized candidate committees, as well as political party entities. The cards were produced by the telecommunications company to be distributed by the client political committees. For each instance when time was purchased on the phone card, through use of the purchaser's credit card, a portion of the dollar value of the card so purchased could be designated as a contribution to the client political committee. The political committee, however, paid the telemarketing firm a fee which included all processing costs and a commercially reasonable profit. The Commission found this proposal was permissible under the Act and Commission regulations.

- t contributions to the individual Federal political committee. The services of these
- 2 corporations to the political committees would be uncompensated. The Commission
- 3 notes that Mohr and Careau, by offering to include political committees in the America
- 4 Plan, are contributing something of value to these political committees. This would meet.
- 5 the definition of "contribution" under 2 U.S.C. 441b(a). Since they are not receiving any
- 6 payment for their Internet marketing services, your proposal, as presented, is subject to
- 7 the corporate prohibitions of 2 U.S.C. 441b.

entirely, it does significantly restrict its scope and the type of committees that may participate in the America Plan. The Act and regulations would not prohibit State or local committees with only non-Federal accounts from participation in the described activity, but such participation would be subject to State or local law. State and local committees with both Federal and non-Federal accounts may participate only if the proceeds or payments they receive from Careau and Mohre are placed in their non-Federal accounts, if permitted under State or local law, and are not used in connection with Federal elections. See 11 CFR 102.5(a) and 106.5; also see Advisory Opinion 1992-40. The authorized committees of Federal candidates, such as those identified in your request.

You cite Advisory Opinion 1994-33 and the opinions above in support of your proposal. However, the unlike these opinions, Careau and Mohre do not seem to be in a vendor relationship with the political committees who participate in the program. See discussion below.

You argue that Careau and Mohre do receive additional compensation in that the burden of marketing the fundraising proposal falls on the participating Committees. The Commission notes that creation of the website with the option to contribute to a Federal political committee is itself a form of marketing. Further, in past affinity marketing opinions, which party bears the marketing burden has not been viewed as a meaningful distinction. See Advisory Opinion 1992-40. You also point out that the Careau and Mohre would receive compensation from its subscribers for its ISP services. However, this does not address the issue of whether Careau and Mohre are being paid the usual and normal charge by the Federal political committees for the services they provide to the Federal political committees.
